

02/05/2026 ---- 2:08 am.

One day I'll do it. Maybe not today, maybe not tomorrow, but I know I will. In my own time, at my own hour. It's exhausting to keep trying to get better, to keep going, to get out of bed every single day. And it's even harder because I have no one. I don't ask for much. My dream is to be with someone, to be able to sleep in the same bed with them. To cuddle together. To kiss. But it will stay right there. As a wish, because I know it won't happen. I don't have my flower. I am withering away inside. I have no desire to keep going. I look for you all the time, my flower. But no matter how hard I search; I can't seem to find you. And I know I will never find you, for I can only imagine you. I can only imagine your voice. Your face. Your body. Your affection. Your words of encouragement. Your company. All of that lives in my mind, and it has never left there. I see other people close to me walking hand in hand with their flower, living a life full of love, caresses, and tender cuddles that seem so far out of my sight. Every night, before I go to sleep, I imagine and ask myself: what would it be like to have you, my flower? Would you love me as much as I love you? Maybe not. Maybe you would only see how repulsive I am. You would see the ugliness I am destined to live with. And no matter how much I cry, you will never fall into my arms and comfort me at night. I will never have your shoulder to rest my head on and let my tears fall. You are only in my mind. In my heart. In my hands that write to you. And maybe I deserve it. Maybe I am destined to never be loved. Destined to watch others love and be loved, looking in from the outside.

But I have hope. A hope that for many isn't appropriate, or even logical, but this hope brings me a certain peace. It's the thought that maybe, just maybe, when all this suffering of mine ends, I will be able to find the flower I searched for so much in life. And be able to love her in eternity. To rest beneath the shade of the apple tree, lay my head on your chest, and listen to your heartbeat. And to be able to enjoy your closeness, without the worry of destiny tearing us apart, because being together will be our destiny. But it wouldn't be right to declare my words as the absolute truth. It's just... a way of thinking that there will be a chance to find my flower. Maybe not now, maybe never, but our meeting is never completely impossible. You live in my mind, so much so that you seem to own it. You keep me company in my hardest moments, in my loneliness and sadness, and even though I know you aren't really there, my flower, it's the illusion that someday you might be that keeps me alive. I truly have no reason to keep fighting against the current. No reason at all. There is nothing on the other side of the river that seems worth getting wet for. No reason. I don't know what's stopping me. But I keep going. Stubborn. Constant.

I hope to see you at the end of all this struggle, flower, because if I don't, none of this will have been worth the pain and effort. All these tears, a waste of time.

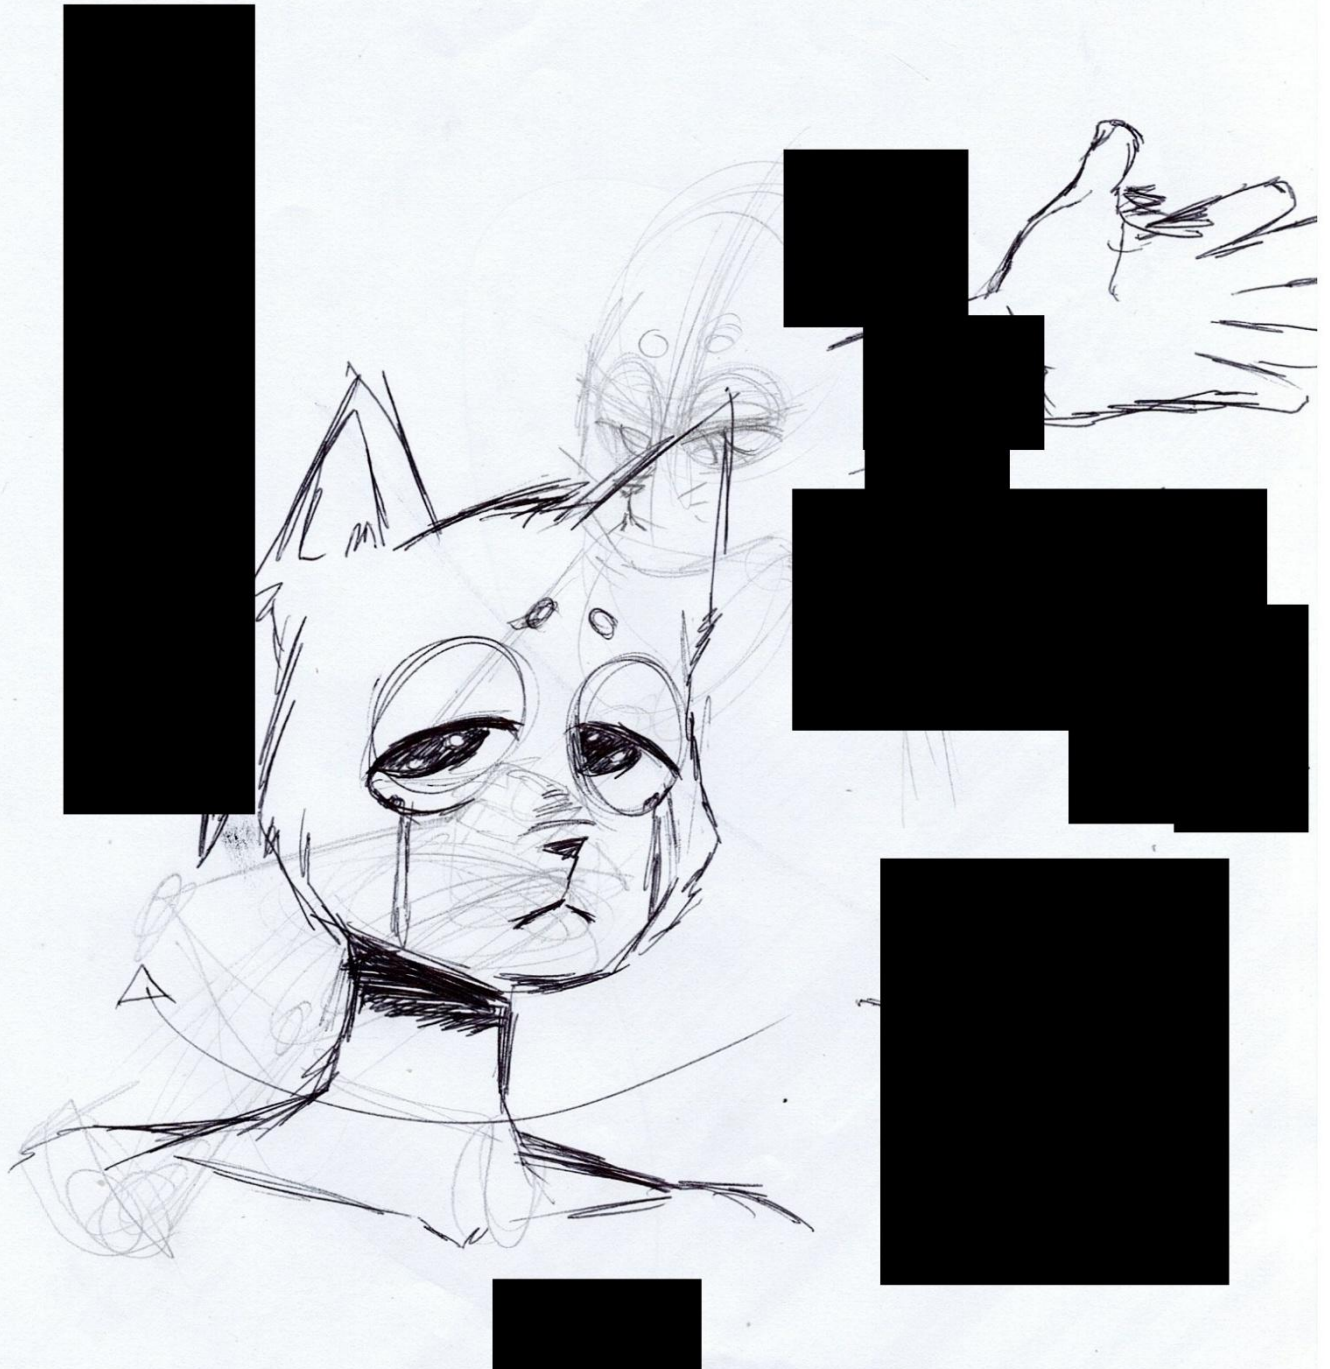

I won't say goodbye, as it isn't my time to go yet, but you can rest assured that someday I will reach you. It might be painful, or slow, but I will do it. I know pain; a little more won't be much of a problem if it means making it to you, one way or another.

I wish I could be the person you want forever, but I can see that won't happen. A little over 20 years in complete loneliness. I can't take it anymore; I can't live without my flower. But it's my fault. I know it. It's my fault for being born like this, for having this face, this voice, and this body that I don't take care of. But I swear, if you were by my side one day, I would show you how much you mean to me. A little more pain doesn't matter. I would do anything just to have you. Anything. Even if that means giving up the fight.

See you soon. Love, Bryan.

"I'll find you in the morning sun;
And when the night is new...
I'll be looking at the moon.
But I'll be seeing you."

Desearia que fueras real, Berkut.
Desearia que estuvieras conmigo.
Que pudiera tener-te, despertar en las mañanas a tu lado.
Poder sentirme amado. Por fin sentir el calor.

Nunca he tenido pareja, y me siento triste por eso; por nunca haber tenido a alguien a quien llamar amor. Hombre mujer o lo que sea, pero deseo tanto saber lo que es que te quieran. de forma incondicional. Deseo tanto saber lo que es besar, abrazar a alguien, amanecer con alguien en tu cama. Pero yo no he tenido nada. Ni siquiera eso he tenido.

No un abrazo
No un beso.

Ni siquiera un apretón de manos

Solo
Ser
tu cuerpo músculos.

Contra el querer

No hay es Solo
vivir es

I JUST WANT TO

quisiera amar y amado. Quisiera sentir Berkut, sentir tus
Sentir el calor de tu pecho
mío. sentir lo que se siente
a alguien y ser amado

Dios, porque este dolor
simplemente insuperable.
re quiero, porque
con esta tristeza insuperable.

